

Jennifer Creighton

I started working in clay during my senior year at Defiance College. After a year of AmeriCorps service, I apprenticed under Steve Smith at 4 Corners Gallery in Angola, Indiana. Since then, I have worked to create and fine-tune my personal line of handcrafted ceramic products. Using an oxygen-saturated electric kiln atmosphere and contrasting glazes, I feel I have produced a line of products that is simultaneously functional and beautiful.

Some facts about me:

- Earned a Bachelor of Arts in International Studies and a Minor in Religious Studies from Defiance College in Defiance, Ohio.
- Traveled to Greece and Spain with the Defiance College Honors Program.
- Traveled to Cambodia with the Defiance College McMaster School for Advancing Humanity to instruct women in family planning techniques and economics.
- Traveled with Steve Smith to Nicaragua in 2013 to train a women's pottery cooperative in wheel throwing and decorative techniques in conjunction with Potters for Peace.
- Was one of three production potters for the Mad Anthony Brewing Company's 2013 Mug Club mugs.
- Exhibited at the Ohio Designer Craftsmen 2013 Winterfair in Columbus, Ohio.
- Exhibited at the 2014 Buyers Market of American Craft in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.
