

Ralph Stuckman

Was born on a farm near Bucyrus, Ohio. He has been highly influenced in the ceramic arts due to these early experiences with nature.

Education is an important priority for him. His formal schooling concluded with an earned doctorate in education from Ball State University. Ralph's career path included many years of teaching education courses at Wright State University and Urbana University in Ohio.

He became fascinated with the ceramic arts in the 1970s. His studies included major institutions in Ohio, Vermont, Missouri, Indiana, and North Carolina. Zach Medler nurtured Ralph's "voice" in pottery being the clay print medium.

Stuckman especially enjoys creating works given themes with these ceramic prints. Ralph really focuses upon simplicities of the art forms where the completed creation becomes a profound whole.

Ralph and Jane live in Celina, Ohio. They have a family that includes a son, daughter, and four grandchildren.
